Hilary Swank stars in "Away," premiering next Friday on Netflix.

"Family Guy" (Fox — season premiere, Sept. 27)
While the audience is used to hearing Stewie (voice of Seth MacFarlane) speaking in erudite Ivy League tones, in the world of the show's characters, he's still a baby who can't be understood by his grown-up human family members. In the season premiere, "Stewie's First Word" — also the show's 350th episode — the little boy hits that developmental milestone, but his first word of choice is filthy. Shunned by other moms, Lois (voice of Alex Borstein) tries to figure out where Stewie picked up that obscenity.

Space may not be the final frontier for Hilary Swank, but it certainly is her next one.

The two-time Oscar winner heads the cast as her character leads a mission to Mars in “Away,” a Netflix drama series that begins streaming Friday, Sept. 4. Crossing the cosmos with an international crew means being away from her husband (“The Good Wife” alum Josh Charles) and teenage daughter (Talitha Bateman) for Emma Green (Swank), who often struggles with her torn emotions en route to the “Red Planet.” Ato Essandoh, Vivian Wu, Mark Ivanir and Ray Panthaki play her fellow astronauts, who have their own personal concerns.

Also an executive producer of “Away,” Swank says she was drawn to Emma being written as “an immensely deep, layered human being. I love that the commander of this mission to Mars is a woman and that’s not the drama of the story. I think that shows how far we’ve come working towards equality.

“The drama is these richly different racial backgrounds,” adds Swank, “these people who are on this journey working towards a goal together while having this gravitational pull to Earth, all having these families that make it a love story. That’s one of the big reasons I wanted to come onboard not only as an actor, but as an executive producer.”

“Parenthood” and “Friday Night Lights” veteran Jason Katims also is among “Away’s” executive producers and he reasons that the saga has even more relevance in the age of the coronavirus pandemic.

“We shot the first season of the show, and then we were in post-production,” Katims reflects, “and a few months ago, we all had to go home and we worked remotely. Editors and producers and visual-effects people were all sending notes and cuts back and forth to each other, and we were trying to figure out how to do something without having the normal human interaction that’s so important to the creative process and to life.

“Suddenly, when we started to re-watch these cuts in this context, the show started to resonate in a way that we never imagined before ... like, the idea of not being able to be with the people that are most important to you.”

However, “Away” writer and executive producer Andrew Hinderaker believes that optimism also is a huge element of the drama. Basing it partially on a magazine article about astronaut Scott Kelly’s preparation for a year aboard the International Space Station, he says, “Now, more than ever, is the time to remember what we’re capable of and what happens when we believe in science and when the world works together. We’re in just such a prime moment to capture that space-exploration excitement, absolutely.”

- If we missed your premiere week’s first episodes of "Love Island," take heart, because tonight’s two-hour recap special with host Arielle Vandenberg will provide latecomers with highlights from this week’s action, as well as exclusive interviews with this season’s participants and other previously unaired footage. Frankly we’re hoping that the latter includes insights into how this season of a show that’s all about romance and passion can pull that off while being filmed under pandemic-mandated health guidelines.

- Cassie is over the moon when her acoustic sorority accepts her as a mid-year transfer, especially since it includes free housing, tuition assistance and a stellar alumni network. It almost seems too good to be true and it is: Cassie soon discovers that her shock of the president and advisor are running an escort service with girls from the sisterhood providing the “talent.” Brynette Ratledge, Elisabetta Fantone and Tommi Rose star in this 2020 melodrama.

- Gavin O’Connor’s inspirational 2020 sports drama about an alcoholic construction worker (Ben Affleck) who gets a chance to redemption when he is recruited to become head baseball coach at his former high school got a warm critical reception on its release just days before the coronavirus pandemic closed theaters around the world. Al Madrigal plays a supporting faculty colleague of Affleck’s character, with Janina Gavankar and Michaela Watkins as his wife and sister respectively. Gunn Tatum and Todd Stashwick co-star.

- Elegant demisexual cranes deftly navigate a treacherous pass through the Himalayas en route to India in the new episode “Asia and Australia,” which gives viewers a bird’s-eye view of both those continents. Among other highlights, vultures circle above a storm of tigers on the hunt, hoping eventually the big cats will leave behind a nice meal for them. Pigeons serve as unlikely unerring guides to the greatest gathering of camels on Earth, while in the Australian outback, white cockatoo swirls by thousands. David Tennant narrates.

“Movie: Alive and Kicking”
Former Hollywood director and passionate swing dance fan Susan Glatzer originally conceived of this 2017 documentary as a project for someone else. It delves into the world of swing dance and the improvisational nature of swing dance competitions.

“Movie: Just Charlie”
From the U.K. comes this 2017 drama movie about a 14-year-old soccer star (Harry Gilby, “Grantchester”) who has caught the eye of several academies but hides a secret that could change everything — that he’s a girl trapped in a boy’s body. Scot Williams, Travis Blake Hall, Jeff Alexander and Karen Bryson also star for director Rebekah Fortune (“Deadly Intent”).

“Movie: Hurricane Bianca”
Fired from a job in Texas for being gay, a New York teacher returns to the big Apple disguised as a nasty woman to exact revenge on those who were cruel to him in this 2016 comedy from writer/director Matt Kugelman in his feature film directorial debut. Drag queen Roy Haylock plays the title character in a cast that also includes Rachel Dratch, Alan Cumming, Margaret Cho and RuPaul.

“Smile Down the Runway”
From Japan comes the first season of this animated series about two young people with aspirations to work in the fashion industry — she as a model, he as a designer — despite discouragement from those around them.
Dr. Sandra Lee

8 p.m. on AMC
Movie: Night at the Museum: Secret of the Tomb

The creative team behind this movie franchise probably made a wise decision to wrap things up given this subplot improves, which finds night watchman Larry Daley (Ben Stiller) setting out on an epic quest to return an Egyptian artifact before setting out on an epic quest to er-films; Dan Stevens (“Downtown Abbey”) is among the newbies.

8 p.m. on BBCA
Movie: Spaceballs

“What’s the matter, Colonel Sanders? Chicken?” It’s no “Blazing Saddles,” but Mel Brooks’ follow-up to “Star Wars” brings plenty of laughs. Brooks has two roles, a planetary politician and a diminutive sage called Yogurt — based on guess who. The heavily accented latter character steals his scenes with such lines as “Meeshandling my money the movie is maded” and “May the Schwartz be with you!” And Rick Moranis’ Dark Helmet is pure gold.

9:30 p.m. on MAX
Movie: Side Effects

Again switching up a genre with his unique sensibility, director Steven Soderbergh (“The Girl With the Dragon Tattoo”) prescribed an experimental drug by a psychiatrist (Jude Law). Her subsequent, shocking actions will have an impact on all concerned, including her parlor peacelee husband (Channing Tatum). Catherine Zeta-Jones also appears.

10 p.m. on TLC
Dr. Pimple Popper: Before the Pop

This new companion series to the runaway hit “Dr. Pimple Popper” follows Dr. Sandra Lee as she takes virtual appointments with new patients seeking her help for their painful or embarrassing skin conditions. The kind of hands-on examinations and treatments featured in the original show are impossible during this time of a pandemic, so Dr. Lee gives careful instructions to her potential patients so they can probe and help examine the affected area, giving Dr. Lee the kind of information she needs to form a diagnosis.

10 p.m. on TRUTV
Taco FMD

The winter holiday season has arrived at the firehouse, filling everyone with good tidings of comfort and joy, in the Season 2 finale, “A Christmas Story.” Well, everyone except for Eddie (Steve Lemme), who is about to lose his mind with stress over getting good year-end reviews.
